The construction of the Hanoi Opera House started in 1901 and was completed in 1911. It was designed by two architects Broger and Harloy and was the first opera house in Hanoi. With a seating capacity of 900, the Hanoi Opera House is a building of great cultural, but also historical significance. In fact, it is the place where the people saw the appearance of the red flag with a star on 17 August 1945. Besides, it also witnessed a demonstration to support the August Revolution.

In 1997, with the aid of the French Government, the theatre was repaired in accordance with its original design. Provided with the best technical equipment, it is home to various high-quality performances.

23. How long was the Hanoi Opera House constructed?

24. Who were its designers?

25. How many seats can the Hanoi Opera House provide?
